

POZIERES IS FIRMLY HELD BY BRITISH

LLAGE COMMANDING PLATEAU OCCUPIED BY GERMAN LINES IS ENTIRELY CAPTURED.

STRONGLY FORTIFIED

Position Regarded By Germans as a Strategic Point Was Defended With Reinforcements From Verdun.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, July 26.—The village of Pozieres has been completely captured by the British, according to official announcement made today by the war office. The text of the statement is as follows:

"The whole village of Pozieres is now in our hands. West of the village a territorial troops made a further advance and captured two strong trenches and a number of prisoners, including five officers. Elsewhere on the battle front there is no change."

Is Commanding Position. The capture of Pozieres, in the Somme river region, reported today by Field Marshal Haig, the British commander in chief in France, gives the British troops domination of the highest point overlooking the plateau on which the German lines extend to the east.

Some of the most stubborn fighting which has now lasted nearly a month, has occurred in the streets of the village, which the Germans have fortified with machine guns and other weapons. The British, after obtaining possession of a considerable portion of the village, were subjected to counter attacks for several days and then again received the initiative until the whole place fell before their onslaught.

The German general regarded the possession of Pozieres as so important that they brought reinforcements from troops which had been fighting in the Verdun section, and these held to part of the village until driven out or captured in hand-to-hand fighting.

DENIAL MADE OF CHARGES BY OFFICER

CAPTAIN IN WISCONSIN REGIMENT DECLARES TROOPS AT BORDER HAVE GOOD FOOD AND CLEAN CAMPS.

MEN WELL CARED FOR

Reports of Numerous Prostrations Among Men in Illinois Regiment Also Proved to Be Unfounded.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Milwaukee, July 26.—In a special letter received today by the Associated Press from Captain Byron Beveridge of the Second Wisconsin Infantry in camp at Camp Wilson, Tex. A general denial is made of charges which have been published regarding poor rations, poor camp facilities, hard work and all other minor cases of complaint.

"Captain Beveridge details at length the conditions in the camp and says that Camp Wilson is far better than the camps in which the soldiers were at the time of the Spanish-American war."

Sickness Exaggerated. He says that reports as to sickness have been greatly exaggerated and that the amount of sickness has been very light except for some minor stomach trouble due largely to drinking too much ice-water or other cold drinks. He adds that no man has been court-martialed for sending a telegram to Senator La Follette, the sender of that message having been tried by a summary court on charges preferred by his sergeant for being absent from camp. So far as he has been able to learn there has been no case of prostration and he is positive there have been none in the Second Wisconsin.

The men are not complaining about the length of drill so far as he has been able to learn.

Sanitation Improved. Captain Beveridge says that there has been a radical change in sanitation since the days of former campaigning and that steps are now being taken to prevent any chance of contamination about camp. The water supply is excellent aside from the fact that the water of course warm as the pipes are laid near the surface of the ground.

There is excellent service being demonstrated among men, they being given most of Saturday afternoon off and all day Sunday at their own request. In appreciation of this concession, large numbers are given freedom at night and on the whole, the captain asserts, the rations, the treatment of men and camp conditions are all that could be expected.

No Fever; No Prostrations. San Antonio, July 26.—Answering an inquiry from the war department General Funston has reported that there is not a single case of fever in the First Illinois cavalry at Brownsville, and that members of the First Illinois brigade did not suffer from heat prostration on the recent march from San Antonio to Leon Springs. Washington, July 26.—In reply to a complaint of Mrs. Henry Smith of Winamac, Indiana, who has a son in the national guard, President Wilson wrote today that the guard was being kept on the Mexican border to protect the country, not for drill, and that the service the men were performing was an honor to them and a necessity to the United States.

Hundreds Ask Release. San Antonio, July 26.—Applications for release from service of guardsmen with persons dependent on them now are pouring into army headquarters at Fort Sam Houston at the rate of 1,500 a week, it was announced today. Several hundred already have been released.

The vast majority of the applications do not come from the guardsmen themselves, but from wives, mothers and sisters in petitions to congressmen interested in their cases. In each case one application must be made, with the result that headquarters has a vast amount of clerical work to perform.

Sign Twenty-five Releases. "Twenty-five releases were signed this morning. Military authorities say that because of the release of the married men and the prospect that many other guardsmen will be free from service so that they may return to college, the military situation in one respect soon will be greatly changed.

U. S. CRUISER DISPATCHED TO OLD POINT

Deutschland Arranges to Secure Clearance Papers at Baltimore Indicating Intentions to Sail Shortly.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Norfolk, Va., July 26.—The armored cruiser North Carolina, weighed anchor at Old Point Comfort at 1:20 P. M. and headed for the Cape. Two torpedo destroyers preceded the cruiser. It was stated at Old Point that the three ships were under orders to lay off the Cape until instruction.

ON NEUTRALITY DUTY

Washington, July 26.—Secretary Daniels announced that the armor cruiser North Carolina, would do neutrality duty for the present outside the Virginia Capes. The navy department would make no comment which would connect the order to the cruiser with the recent dash of a British cruiser into American waters.

RECENT BRITISH SPYING

Washington, July 26.—Officials here regard the visit of an unidentified British cruiser at a time one of Germany's underwater liners is about to start back to Germany and another is reported about to arrive as very unusual and are inclined to suspect an excursion into American waters. There is no doubt that if the Allied cruisers waiting for the German submarine of the Virginia Cape deem it wise to attack her, the result will limit the question would be taken up officially.

U-BOAT ARRANGES TO CLEAR

SUBMERGING TEST GIVEN

The Deutschland was given another submerging test at her dock today. When she arose to the surface, ten minutes later, her commander and constructor expressed their satisfaction with the result. It was learned the submerging of the craft is necessary to trim her cargo properly.

Respecting a report that the Bremen, the sister ship which is hourly expected, in American waters, would be escorted by the vessel, who, it was said, it was said at the offices of the Deutschland agent here today that the Bremen would "seek shelter in the nearest places and most convenient on the Atlantic seaboard."

MEANS BROKEN BLOCKADE

It, at the present time, the commercial carriers that built the Deutschland claim, this is only the beginning of undersea commerce between the two countries, the British navy, on only has been permanently pierced by Great Britain faces a crisis in her commercial export trade, according to what is being said and done in London.

Some time before the Deutschland arrived at Baltimore, the merchants and manufacturers of England were frightened by the seemingly authentic report that Germany had stored up $1,500,000,000 or more, two billion dollars worth of goods ready to dump on the markets of the world after the war. The Britishers organized the United Association of Trade Protective societies with 50,000 members and adopted a resolution urging the government to help head off the flood of German goods through the establishment and operation of a Ministry of Commerce.

Should the undersea commerce venture of Germany, while the war still is in progress, prove practical on each the other side, it would be pointed to crush the Teutonic commercial competition and will, it is believed, face a serious situation in dealing with her world markets, particularly after the war and somewhat immediately.

RECOMMEND JAEKE TO GOV. PHILIPP AS COMPANY HEAD

H. M. Friis and Roy Worthington Named to Lieutenancies—Elections Must be Approved Later.

OFFICERS RECOMMENDED BY MEMBERS OF COMPANY FOR PERMANENT POSITION.

Captain Hans J. Jaekle, First Lieutenant H. M. Friis, Second Lieutenant Roy Worthington, Committee of three to arrange for armory, Carl Buchholz, Roy Worthington and J. M. Dixon.

After the members of the company had taken the oath of allegiance to the United States and the State of Wisconsin it was suggested that while everybody was present that it would be the best time to elect officers. The election however only constituted a recommendation of the company members as to just whom they desired as leaders. This list must now be forwarded to Governor Philipp for his approval. Under former statutes it was permissible for the company to select its own officers but under the code in which the unit was mustered in by Col. Salsman last year the former procedure must be followed.

Hans J. Jaekle and Fred Rau were nominated for the captaincy. Mr. Jaekle, when the tellers, Fred Church and J. Peter Hammarlund counted the ballots was found to have been given the approval of the majority and was declared the official recommendation of the company for captain by Carl Buchholz, acting chairman of the meeting.

H. M. Friis and Fred Rau were nominated for first lieutenant and Friis the ballots showed, was elected. Roy Worthington was recommended as second lieutenant.

Decision to begin immediately with arrangements for an armory was made and a committee of three to act as trustees with limited powers were named. Carl Buchholz heads this committee. His co-members are Roy Worthington and Jess M. Dixon.

Members of Summer Garden Class Will Enjoy Picnic at Lauderdale Lake Next Week.

Seventy members of the summer garden class that has been conducted this summer under the direction of Allen B. West, instructor of agriculture at the high school, will enjoy a picnic next Thursday, August 3, at Lauderdale lake. The day's outing is being made possible by the Civic and Public Welfare committees of the Commercial club. Yesterday afternoon a meeting was held to make final plans for the picnic next Thursday.

The trip will be made overland, starting at eight o'clock in the morning and returning at six o'clock in the evening. It is planned that while on the way to the lake a number of stops will be made to inspect model gardens. HUNDREDS ATTEND PICNIC AT YOST'S

Grocers-Butchers' Annual Outing at Yost's Park Today Attracts Hundreds.

Close to one thousand Janesville people at noon today were at Yost's park in attendance at the annual outing of the Butchers and Grocers. As many more were expected during the afternoon and evening.

The program of sports, including field and aquatic competition and various other features, for which valuable prizes were donated by the Janesville men, was run off in good order this afternoon. In the ball game between the sports clubs and the drivers of the Janesville delivery system, the latter won by a 15 to 3 score. At no time were the horsemen in danger of defeat and after the sixth inning it was only a matter of how large the score would be.

Activities for the Grocers-Butchers' picnic commenced early this morning. At half past eight the parade formed in line on North Main street and marched through the business district of the city. The committee in charge of the picnic was as follows: Messrs. Taylor, Roseling, Conway, Knutson, Bauman, Geiss, Grunzel and Courtney. BIG CROWD INSPECTS THE TRACTOR PLANT

New Concern's Factory and Product Shown at Public Demonstration Tuesday Evening.

More than a hundred persons interested in the success of the Janesville tractor company, one of the city's new industries, attended a public demonstration held at the factory on South Franklin street on Tuesday evening. One of the tractors was seen in operation, and the factory as it is at present equipped for assembling the machines was open for inspection.

The tractor, which is one of the improved types of kerosene burner operated economically, according to Mr. Townsend, who explained technical points of his machine. He claims that a little more than a gallon of kerosene is all the fuel needed to plow an acre of land. It takes about a pint of gasoline to start the machine, after which kerosene is used. Three fourteen-inch plows give the best satisfaction in operation according to Mr. Townsend.

Up to the present time the company has shipped out four tractors, two within the past week. An inability to get handpieces to turn out the tractors, and it is impossible to fill orders as fast as they come in. The tractor will be displayed at the Janesville fair in August, and will also be shown at the Wisconsin county fair at Elkhorn, as well as other fairs throughout the state.

The Janesville Military Band gave a short program as a feature of the public inspection last evening.

GERMANY REFUSES BELGIUM PERMISSION OF IMPORTING ANY GOODS FROM HOLLAND

The Hague, Netherlands, July 26.—Notwithstanding the she has already largely monopolizing the export of Holland's surplus agricultural and other food products, Germany has just issued a decree with a view to removing the ban on the import of goods from Belgium. A decree has been issued in Belgium prohibiting commerce and dealers from importing goods from Belgium. Applications to make such purchases must be submitted to Berlin. The result is that Belgium, where distress was really acute, is deprived of an indispensable article of food, and the great difficulties which the American relief commission is experiencing with cargo space does not allow of the adequate and speedy replacement from that quarter.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

A LOVER OF DUMB BEASTS.

Mr. Editor: Our editorial on "Water Works" hit the nail square on the head. Before election we were told every thing, but like pie crusts, promises are easily broken. I have a question which I should like to have answered by one of our councilmen will kindly do it for me. Is, why wait until this extreme, hot, dry spell to repair the animal drinking fountain in second ward. The water was cut off yesterday afternoon of 24th and not a hand turned up to say they employ as yet to repair it. In the meantime horses are needing the water to slacken their great thirst, but nothing doing for their relief by the city. I wish to ask you, those who are paid to look after the city in repair. Why, I ask, is this delay? If workmen are not available, why cut off the drinking supply until all material and workmen are on the ground. The kind of work does not speak of intelligence; rather of gross ignorance or carelessness. Which is it?

July 31, this one charged with perjury in connection with private court records in the case. She was acquitted, several months ago, of the direct charge of foisting the child on the Matfers estate.

The Matfers estate case, to date, has unfolded a story that would furnish a do Mappassant with plots for a dozen novels. It began when December 1904, when Frederick Matfers, a well-to-do, moving picture magnate, a man nearly seventy, married Anna Dollie Ledgerwood, a woman of twenty.

When Mrs. Matfers died, leaving a $200,000 estate. A few weeks after the death Mrs. Matfers appeared with a baby. It was hers, she said, born to her at Misericordia hospital, at Ottumwa, Iowa. Other heirs to the estate questioned her claim of a posthumous heir. In the first place, they said, parenthood was a physical impossibility to Matfers.

Physicians came from the hospital and testified for Mrs. Matfers. It was her baby, they said, then months later, Dr. L. C. Emile Bernard, chief obstetrician of the hospital, came to Chicago and said his conscience had troubled him, that he wanted to change his story.

This time he said he was telling the truth. The baby was not Mrs. Matfers' baby. It was born to Margaret Bryan, a young Canadian girl who had surrendered to love when the village blacksmith in her town went away to war with the Canadian conscription. The baby was taken from Margaret at its birth, Dr. Bernard said, and taken to a room where Mrs. Matfers lay. Margaret was told that her baby had died at birth. She lay in the ward while Mrs. Matfers, known to the "poor ward" as the "millionaire lady," crooned over the child.

ONCE MORE BABY IS CHIEF FIGURE IN BIG LAWSUIT

Matters' Baby is Again Chief Figure in Famous Law Suit in Chicago.

Chicago, July 26.—The famous Matfers baby, who has cooed, gurgled and played with her toes through two court trials already, was the central figure in another court proceeding before Federal Judge Landis here today. Margaret Bryan, who swore in court that the baby girl is hers because she was the unwed wife of bride of the village blacksmith of her Canadian hometown, appeared to plead with Judge to let her have the tiny mite. The rich Mrs. Annie Dollie Ledgerwood-Matfers also claims to be the mother of the baby.

Mrs. Matfers, charged with foisting the baby on her husband's estate as a spurious heir, is to go to trial again July 31, this one charged with perjury in connection with private court records in the case. She was acquitted, several months ago, of the direct charge of foisting the child on the Matfers estate.

The Matfers estate case, to date, has unfolded a story that would furnish a do Mappassant with plots for a dozen novels. It began when December 1904, when Frederick Matfers, a well-to-do, moving picture magnate, a man nearly seventy, married Anna Dollie Ledgerwood, a woman of twenty.

"ROLL YOUR OWN" FOR THE LIVELIEST OF ALL SMOKES!

Make Your Cigarettes Yourself with Famous "Bull" Durham—It's the Latest and Greatest Smoking Fad

That smart, snappy fad of "rolling your own" cigarettes with "Bull" Durham tobacco has captured the country.

Smokers everywhere and in every walk of life have taken it up, and wherever you go you see live, virile, sturdy men smoking fresh-rolled "Bull" Durham cigarettes.

"Bull" Durham is the best tobacco in the world for cigarettes. It is pure Virginia-Carolina leaf, with a mellow-sweet flavor that is distinctive and an aroma that is unique. It makes a cigarette which simply can't be equalled for thorough enjoyment.

Added to the wonderful smoking quality of "Bull" Durham, you also have the satisfaction of putting your own personality into the shaping of your cigarette. And you know that it's always fresh. Get a 5c sack of "Bull" Durham with free package of "papers". Try "rolling your own". A little practice will give you the knack. Then you'll know why this fad is so widespread—so tremendously popular with smart smokers.

Avoids Breakfast Cooking--

New Post Toasties are ready to eat direct from the package. They have a fine new flavour—self-developed by a new patented process. It's the rare, true flavour of prime, white Indian corn itself, and these New Toasties are the first corn flakes that do not depend on cream and sugar for palatability.

The proof of this superior flavour is found by eating some from the package dry. They're deliciously good that way, but of course are usually served with cream or good milk.

Examine the New Post Toasties flakes. The quick fierce heat of the new process of manufacture, not only raises the distinguishing little bubbles on each flake, but gives a body and firmness that makes the New Toasties a more substantial food than ordinary "corn flakes."

New Post Toasties do not "chaff" or crumble in the package, and they don't mush down when cream is added. They come to you untouched by hand, and in moisture-proof packages that preserve their delightful oven-crispness until served at your table.

Well worth trying—these

GOOD ROADS ARE TO BE ASSURED STATE

La Follette, Husting, Phillip, McGovern and Williams Want State Trunk Line Roads Built.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Madison, Wis., July 25.—Senators La Follette and Husting, Governor Phillip, William H. Hutton, Francis McGovern and Burt Williams, candidates for governor, standing on the same platform, are in favor of Wisconsin. Good roads is the slogan which has been chosen by the four candidates to have bound them together and good roads advocates are making it the issue of the campaign. The fact is not without significance, however, as it indicates an agreement on the part of all parties and all factions on the good roads question which will undoubtedly result in legislation next winter strengthening and broadening the present highway law.

This indicated by advance sheets of "Good Roads for Wisconsin," the official organ of the Good Roads Association of Wisconsin. This association is opening up a state wide campaign to strengthen the present highway law, especially in the construction of state trunk lines covering the entire state of Wisconsin. The members of the organization are jubilant over the outlook and feel that the highway legislation passed by the next legislature will be a big step forward.

Senator La Follette, in discussing the matter says:

"The construction of state trunk lines, north and south and east and west, is based on sound economic principles. Such roads would materially aid the farmers and the small towns of the state."

Senator Husting believes that permanent highway improvement is a self evident proposition and commends the organization "for educating the people to the fact that the present highway law is a makeshift and that the energy caused through piecemeal highway improvement."

Governor Phillip directly commits himself to the trunk line proposition. "I favor the construction of the construction of trunk lines," he writes. "I do not think we shall ever get good roads by the present system of patching up the old roads. I hope that the next legislature will seriously consider a change to the trunk line system."

Former Senator Hutton, Progressive candidate for governor, believes that the state should lay out a comprehensive plan of state trunk lines reaching all parts of the state and the state should build them.

"These trunk lines should be constructed wholly by the state to insure efficiency and economy in engineering and in the letting of contracts," he believes the location of these trunk lines should take into consideration not only present needs, but the future development of the state, and the trend and volume of traffic.

Former Governor Francis E. McGovern, who has been a strong advocate of "piecemeal" construction, has been a means of good roads education, but the time has come for a systematic development of trunk lines.

"Without neglecting any county," writes Mr. McGovern, "or altering the present scheme which makes the county the unit of administration, comprehensive highways of uniformly high grade construction, running through all the counties and connecting the various parts of the state, should now be made."

The Democratic candidate for governor, Burt Williams, calls attention to the fact that he has been advocating the state wide program for good roads development for years. He writes:

"I believe there is a vital need for the construction of main trunk lines throughout the state to serve the state's interests as quickly as possible, to replace scattered and ineffective efforts with co-operation and unity and to give leadership and inspiration to this road movement in Wisconsin."

WHY THE BEST OF CHEWS IS "SPEAR HEAD"

Its Rich, Sweet, Mellow Flavor Has Been Famous for a Generation

MADE OF CHOICEST RED BURLEY

The secret of tobacco satisfaction is known only to the man who chews plug tobacco. The reason is that a good chew gets right next to your taste, while the leaf in plug tobacco is in a state of fresh, juicy richness that is not possible in any other form of tobacco.

There's no tobacco in the world that can give you the hearty, wholesome flavor that you get from a delicious chew of Spear Head.

Spear Head is made exclusively of ripe, red Kentucky Burley—the most richly-flavored chewing tobacco that grows. Still more, only the very choicest red Burley leaf is used for Spear Head.

This choice leaf is selected with the most painstaking care, is stemmed by hand, is thoroughly washed free of all foreign matter, and is pressed into Spear Head plugs so slowly that not a drop of juice or an atom of the natural flavor escapes.

Try Spear Head and you'll get a sweet, mellow, luscious, satisfying chew that cannot be obtained in any other tobacco. Buy a 5c or 10c cut to-day.

ORFORD MAY GET MILK CONDENSORY

Chicago Men Take Option on Tract in Village.—Citizens and Farmers Desire New Plant.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Orfordville, July 26.—It begins to look very much as though Orfordville is to have a milk condensing factory. On Monday evening Mr. Waters of Chicago, western superintendent of the Borden company, together with Mr. Carr of Monroe were in the village and met several of the citizens, and the committee that had been appointed to look into the details of the work of securing the location of a plant at Orfordville. Both of these gentlemen were favorably impressed with the idea of locating a factory not only with the idea of locating a factory, but with the spirit exhibited by the citizens of the village and the farmers in the adjacent territory. Before leaving they secured an option on a very desirable location and will in a few days have drillers on the ground to ascertain the advisability of attempting to secure an artesian well. They will also send one of their surveyors, who will report to them his findings regarding the matter of sewage. In the meantime Superintendent Waters will interview the officials of the railroad company regarding the laying of sewer tiles along the right of way. If permission can be obtained, the question of drainage will be greatly simplified.

MOVING GYPSY BANDS ORDERED ROUNDED UP BY HUNGARIAN GOVERNMENT

Budapest, July 26.—The government has taken new steps to solve the gypsy problem which has always been a serious one in Hungary, by ordering the rounding up of every roving band in the kingdom. Men of military age will be sent into the army, all usable horses will be confiscated and the women and undrafted men put to work. No one knows how many hundreds of thousands of these nomads have escaped military duty up to date, but the number is believed to be very large.

TREE TRIMMING.

The pessimist always finds cause for arguments, pro and con, on any question. However, in the question of tree trimming one must only call attention to the city ordinances that affect this subject and ponder and wonder why any statement from the mayor or some authorized city official has not been made calling attention to it.
It would not be necessary for the mayor to employ an official tree trimmer to cut hither and yon, at his own convenience, if the property owners would live up to the law.
Like the sign ordinance, they are dead letters, perhaps, but still they are on the city books and why not enforce them?

Give fair warning that trees not complying with the law should be trimmed at once and then hire some one to trim those trees if they are not cut according to the law. Of course it is easy enough to talk, but one hears so many complaints of the city government for this or that cause that it is a relief to start one all your own.

Janesville is blessed with a wonderful planting of shade trees. These trees are the pride of the property owners. Yet many fail to realize that if they hang lower on the street side over the sidewalk than the certain distance they violate the law. Of course it is a shame to cut them, but it invigorates the growth of the remaining branches, so why delay?

Comply with the law and do not wait for some official to warn you.
Ignorance of the law is no excuse,
under the common law, we are told,
and consequently it would be best to be informed just what the law is.
Branches should be permitted to hang and then comply with the law.

THE SOCIALIST VOTE.

Enthusiastic predictions based on previous election results are being made as to the growth of the socialist vote at the November election. It is quite possible that these predictions will be realized. There are a great many people who are swayed
by sentimental and dreamy ideals.

The socialists are voluble thinkers and can rattle off statistics by the yard. They can point to plenty of flaws in the present social structure, and can have no difficulty in finding injustice and suffering. They find instances both in this country and Europe where government enterprises have seemed on the face of it to work out a profit for the people.

Yet a little examination usually shows that you can prove anything on earth by statistics. The low fares on foreign electric roads owned by municipalities do not look so low, when you figure out the cost of the able to hire labor and buy materials at low prices. Also they operate in crowded towns and do not carry people long distances and give free transfers as in this country. Also in those countries politics is divorced more from public business. In our country a man would have to belong to the right political faction to get a job on a government enterprise. That does not promote efficiency.

A socialist orator may quote statistics by the mile, but if he has no against plain facts of every day life,
he wins few votes from practical men.
The common sense citizen looks around him and sees the government building $100,000 post offices, involving interest charges and upkeep of $5,000 to $10,000 annually, in towns where a $1,500 annual rental would fill all needs.

As he sees the waste and favoritism manifest in government work, he is little inclined toward socialistic government enterprises, until the politicians learn the A B C's of business efficiency.

SHARKS AND OTHER NUISANCES.

"Of course it had to be. The federal government had to take up the shark question, just as it is prepared to take up any other question where some popularity is to be had, with some obscure and unrewarded individual to do the work. The treasury department is to send the coast guard service adding. The secretary of commerce has had an interesting and characteristically futile discussion with the fisheries department. Un-accountably Secretary Daniels has not mobilized the navy. And yet how useful he might be in the capacity of bait," says an eastern exchange.

"That the trouble can be handled by the local authorities, and particularly by fishermen in the course of their daily employment, with perhaps the inducement of a small bounty for every shark killed, matters nothing to Washington. It is forever looking for new avenues, novel directions of its industry, sublimely unconscious of its thorough inefficiency in the necessary work of governing a great country.

"Our best and most useful departments pass unnoticed because there is little advertising to be had from them. The geological survey does magnificent work, and could do even better with more generous treatment from congress. But its publications have not the vote-getting value of garden seeds and congressional record clippings. Congress is more interested in postal service by aere-plane, or anything else that can secure newspaper notoriety. The imperative routine work of the various departments tends to become less attractive to the public servant, whose amateur superiors are indifferent to the humdrum details which secure them no advertising.

"This is the age of publicity, and the politician knows it. Publicity is an excellent thing for business, and advertising pays for itself, and by increasing the output lays no economic burden upon the consumer. But the politician's publicity is a different matter. It is not a means, as it should be, but an end. If catching sharks will catch votes, what does it matter if the coast guard service neglects its proper business?

"It is a somewhat humiliating condition but one that seems likely to continue until the people decide next November the kind of service they expect for the inordinate taxes they pay."

FRAUDS AND FAKERS.

War times and holiday times and all unusual occasions bring forth a class of human vultures who prey on society.

A gang of burglars and pick-pockets and confidence men usually follow circuses to fleece the crowds. They come to any community on the occasion of any great public gathering.

To almost every town some stranger has come with a stock of goods of some kind which he claims to be able to sell at a ridiculously low price for some plausible reason or other.

Just now most of them are using the war in Europe as the excuse. They are claiming to have bought the stock of some merchant or manufacturer or importer in some of the great cities who was ruined by the war and who found it necessary to raise money quickly at any sacrifice or whose creditors closed him up and that these unidentified and unvouched strangers in your town have secured the stock at sheriff's sale at a tremendous bargain.

Or some wily oriental with an unscrupulous American partner pretends to have imported thousands of dollars worth of silks and china and furniture and rugs which he is unable to dispose of in the ordinary way because of war times in Europe and the hard times among stock brokers and board of trade operators and bankers in the large cities for whose benefit these alleged gems have been imported, therefore he is offering them to the highest bidder at auction.

As an actual fact a vast amount of the merchandise offered by these fakers never saw the light. They are factories in the United States that are running overtime the year round making these imitation Chinese and Japanese vases and dishes and furniture and other merchandise.
It is not only not what these strangers claim to be, but it is not even as good as ordinary cheap stuff that you can buy in any store.

The strangers who run fraudulent sales of clothing and shoes and leather goods and jewelry and china and pictures and rugs and scores of other things are all in the same class. They claim to be selling bargains and give plausible stories to back up their claims, but usually they do not even give good, ordinary values such as you could get in any store at any time.

In most cases the alleged bankrupt never existed, the alleged importations at great expense were made in this country but are not up to this country's standards and the whole story is a deliberate scheme to get your money for a lot of trash that is not worth house room.

Legitimate merchants and legiti-mate advertisers with an established business and a known permanent location can and will give you more for your money than these irresponsible fly-by-night frauds and fakers.

It is a mystery to womankind, why a man who knows the details of a large business, should not be able to find the saucers with the forget-me-nots, in the left-hand corner of the sixth shelf of the china closet.

The validity of the state regulation of railroad fares has not yet been fully tested, but the stockholders should be thankful that one public did not decide to be transported for nothing.

A lot of German dyes came over in that submarine, and the goods colored with them, unlike some others, can't be guaranteed to turn white the first time they are washed.

It is claimed that a hostile fleet could destroy New York in an hour, but they dissent to it if they saw the militia in all their gold lace drawn up on Coney Island.

It is about time for Villa to raid our border again, undaunted by the fact that this means our government will send another note to Carranza.

The man who is principled against tipping at the summer hotels usually finds his breakfast coming along very conveniently for the dinner hour.

The professionals are said to be in possession of the stock market, but they kindly allow the rest of the public to leave their money there.

It is complained that hurdy gurdies distract the attention of the clerks.
Thus commercialism gets the better of the fine arts.

The shirtwaist costume is again popular for men, but the new pattern suggests that the noiseless variety is preferable.

The Fourth of July casualties are only a small fraction of those occurring in the swimming holes every hot Sunday.

tinguish right from wrong?" Paul—

THE SONG OF THE SOUL.

(By Frances Warren)
All melody of earth will vibrate
With a closing stanza's strain,
And only come to us in memory.
Reproduced, seems all in vain.

But, when the Temple door is closed
If the soul has kept her vow (Constancy to God forever).
Comes an Anthem to her now.

With a volume far, far sounding,
Oh! an never ending strain,
And the Theme is love unchanging,
From its birth. One and the same.

'Tis the key that opens Heaven,
'Tis the "Written" signed Reprieve.
Of Redemption that is perfect,
Of a Savior—we believed.

So the song with all its meaning
Reverberates along the aisles,
Attuned to that on yonder shore,
Where the Savior waits and smiles.

The Daily Novelette

TOO PROUD TO ARGUE.

You never can tell. Some men are self-starters and others need a crank to get them going.—Prof. Simp.

"Give my lamps the o. c.," said the man with the red sweater and the peremptory manner. "Some stiff I know says I need glasses and I says
I don't. See?"

"Certainly, sir. Save a heat—have a seat," invited the optician, a rather undersized short man of medium height. "Now kindly read the top line of letters on the card against the far wall."

"B. X. C. L. D.," read the man with the red sweater and the p. m.
"No, try again," suggested the optician.

"B. X. C. L. D. I said and I says again."

"But—"

"But my eye!" roared the man in the chair. "I ain't allowin' no little sausage to tell me I can't read letters a foot high. 'M I right or 'm I wrong?"

"Right," quavered the optician.
"Sure I'm right, my dear."

"No. Here's a dime day—dime carfare. Sorry to have troubled you."

And the man with the r. s. and the peremptory manner hulked out another indication of the wisdom of superior armaments.

On the Spur of the Moment

ROY K. MOULTON

HER
Ah, how I loved her graceful lines;
She was a beauty, that I vow.
How for her my poor heart pined,
My tale of grief you must allow.

Last summer I did spend with her,
I loved her with a passion mad;
In my spare hours I would not stir
Away from her, I had it said.

She had me lashed right to the mast,
'Til I tell you that is true, by heck,
The trouble was she was too fast,
And now she is a total wreck.

How I yearn for the days gone by,
The passing years cannot atone;
I don't forget her, though I try—
That motor boat I used to own.

UNCLE ABNER
Hank Purdy has his boots halfsoled with a beet leaf that his daughter cooked for him last week. He has been taking a correspondence school course in culinary art.

Hod Renfrew told his son, Willie, that he wanted him to grow up to be as good a man as his father is. Willie will probably be able to do this without much effort.

Almost any fellow can think up seventeen good excuses why he hasn't got time to beat a carpet.

"The distance of years lends considerable enchantment to the old fashion cooking after all," says a friend in this world a feller, in order to git along has got to do something or somedbody.

There ain't no feller who kin be more pleasant or so ticklish about your health than the one who is about to ask you to endorse a note for him.

SUSPENDERS
Another great institution is threatened by the faddists who can never let well enough alone. Tailoring experts having been goaded into it by the scions of high society, who have frowned upon the suspenders and say that within a very short time it will be obsolete.

This seems to be striking a blow at the very essence of freedom and liberty for which this great country more or less noted throughout the world. By the aid of suspenders this country has accomplished a great deal. All the great buildings, all the immense bridges and the public works have been erected by men who were suspenders. Without the suspender what could they have accomplished? Echo answers: "What?"

If those men had gone about holding their clothing on with one hand and with but one other hand with which to work, would this country be where it is today?

Nothing gives a working man more confidence and more power to do great things than a good pair of suspenders.
Suspenders have been the main support of this nation for many many years. Most men have to work with both hands. How could the dauntless freeman have courage to run up a ladder and rescue the cheerless from the clutches of the great country?

As usual the reformers offer no substitute. They do not suggest wither the coming race of men shall fasten their clothing on with nails, library paste or clips. They simply seek to tear down a great national institution without putting anything in its place.

EVER HEAR THESE?
"Honest Grace I never use a thing for my complexion. It is just natural."
"Mag you are the only woman I ever loved."

"I will be ready in five minutes, Henry. Don't be impatient."

"My daughter has had three offers from opera companies, but she prefers to stay right here at home and help her mother with the housework."

"Oh, yes, Wilson has offered me one or two places, but I don't care to get mixed up in politics."

"I enjoyed my visit here very much and I think you have the finest town in the country and I'm just dying to locate here."

"I can smoke or not, just as I please no effort at all."

"There isn't a man in the world I would marry."

Has a Chuckle Coming.

No doubt the wise old hen chuckles to herself every time she sees a man trying to beat her little game with an incubator.

JEFFRIS IS READY FOR TOUR OF STATE

Heavy Female.
The weight of the Statue of Liberty in New York harbor is 440,000 pounds.

Will Begin His Active Campaign at Ashland on Monday, July 31—Speaks at Baraboo on August 3.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., July 26.—Malcolm
G. Jeffris of Janesville, republican candidate for United States senator, will begin his first week of the state campaign at Ashland on July 31.

From that date until the primary election Mr. Jeffris will speak nearly every night and often during the day.
His Ashland speech will be given under the auspices of the Jeffris club in that city.

The itinerary for the week of July 31, as it has been completed, is as follows:

July 31—Ashland.
August 1—Spooner.
August 2—Eau Claire.
August 3—10 a. m., Reedsburg county fair.

August 3—Baraboo.
August 4—Superior.
Other meetings probably will be arranged during the week where train connections will permit of afternoon speeches. At the headquarters of the Jeffris club of Dane county at the Park hotel requests have been received from all part of the state for speaking dates and these are being arranged so that during the month
Mr. Jeffris will fill as many as his time will permit. The widespread interest in Mr. Jeffris' candidacy is shown by the fact that every mail brings reports of organization of Jeffris clubs. Some of these are from counties known heretofore as La Pette strongholds and the number of members is surprisingly large.

THE Republicans, pleased

Kinley, nominated Roosevelt in 1904. A split had occurred in the Democratic party over the question of free silver. Wil-bitter enemies. Alton B. Parker of New York was agreed on as a compromise candidate. He was supposed to have no decid-

The Heavens In August

Welcome newcomers this month include the Constellations Capricornus, Pegasus and Andromeda—Where to find the great square of Pegasus. Mars is preparing to set in the western sky. Uranus is in position for possible observation and Jupiter also is to be seen in the evening.

Interesting phenomenon on the 25, the occultation of Saturn by a great meteoric spectacle this month the shower of the Perseids—their origin. (By C. S. Brainin, of the Columbia University Observatory Staff.)

We greet the month the very welcome newcomers on our map, the constellations Capricornus, Pegasus, Andromeda and parts of the groups Perseus and Aquarius. Capricornus, the Sea-Goat, contains no very bright stars, but is one of the oldest constellations of the zodiac, that is, it is in the belt in which the sun and planets appear. It was in this group, near the brighter star furthest to the east, that human eye first beheld the planet Neptune and recognized it as such. Clear of the horizon now, we have the great Flying Horse, Pegasus, the three most brilliant stars of which, together with the brightest of the stars belonging to the group Andromeda, a little farther to the northeast, form a square called the Great Square of Pegasus. Alpha Pegasi, the brightest of the constellation, is called Markab and is one of the stars most used by mariners for observing lunar distances to get longitude at sea. This star has been discovered by the spectroscope to be really composed of two stars, which appear as one to the naked eye. Andromeda, the maid saved from the sea monster by the hero Perseus, is just rising over the horizon.

The Planets. Mars is preparing to set in the western sky and before the month is over will be below the horizon well before nine o'clock. Uranus, the farthest planet but one from the sun, is in position for possible observation this month. His position can be seen by reference to the map, where he will be found in the southeastern sky in the constellation Capricornus. In brightness he will be equivalent to the star of the sixth magnitude and therefore hardly a fit object for naked eye observation and at best an object of not too great interest, even with a faintest telescope. This planet was unknown to the ancients, and was discovered first in 1786 by an astronomer who mistook it for a fixed star. Later Sir William Herschel identified it as a planet member of the solar system. Saturn and Venus may be seen just before dawn in the eastern sky; Jupiter rises soon after the time of the map and is a good object for the later hours.

Occultation of Saturn. An extremely interesting phenomenon is to occur this month on the 25th at three minutes past three in the morning. In spite of the unfavorable hour we should try to see it, if it is to be an occultation of the bright planet by the moon. It will last about an hour, when the planet will emerge. This is really a sort of an eclipse, quite analogous to an eclipse of the sun. The moon which is comparatively near to the earth will interpose itself between us and the planet and blot it from our view. Such occultations of the visible stars are not rare, but this is the only occultation of a planet by the moon this year. An occultation of a star by a planet is a still rarer phenomenon, happening perhaps once in sixty or seventy years.

PETROGRAD COMBATS HIGH COST OF LIVING THROUGH MUTUAL SHOPS

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Petrograd, July 26.—A society for combating the high cost of living has opened a number of shops for the sale of provisions to the working population on the closest possible margin. Eleven of these shops have already been established. They are located in the vicinity of factories which are working for the national defense. It is proposed to open a total of thirty shops in the near future. A plan is being studied by the city duma contemplating the establishment of municipal dining rooms in convenient places throughout the resident districts.

Lunar Occultations. The old navigators, before the days of accurate chronometers, made much use of the observations of occultations of the stars by the moon for the purpose of learning their longitude, as the time of the occurrence of these phenomena could be worked out quite accurately. They are not so much observed today, but there exists quite another fact connected with the moon upon which these eclipses cast much light, namely, the question of the existence of a lunar atmosphere. If the moon were surrounded by an atmosphere, such as the earth's, we would expect that the moon, as it interposed itself between our eyes and the star, would gradually blot the star out from sight as the latter got behind more and more the dense section of the air. This, however, is not the case. The star remains absolutely clear all it is suddenly blotted out by the moon body itself.

The August Meteors. August brings with it one of the grandest of the meteoric showers of the year, the shower of Perseids. They are most plentiful in the morning hours, but many will be seen throughout the night. The name Perseids is given them because their radiant, or that point in the sky from which they seem all to come, is in the constellation Perseus.

Much misconception exists concerning these so-called shooting stars and this can probably be traced directly to their popular name. In reality they are not stars at all; they are simply tiny particles of matter, for the greater part no larger than the average pin-head, which come into contact with the earth's atmosphere. Whatever their origin may have been, they had been passing through space, following the all-compelling law of gravitation, just as any larger body would do, moving probably with great speed, because of the absence of friction in space, they suddenly fall into the dense atmosphere, and the heat engendered by this sudden meeting both raises the air to a white heat and consumes the meteor. Sometimes one of these bodies is great enough not to become entirely consumed and reaches the earth. We have many of them in the different museums. It is interesting to note that not one of these meteorites or aerolites that reach terra firma contains any element or matter which we do not already possess on the earth.

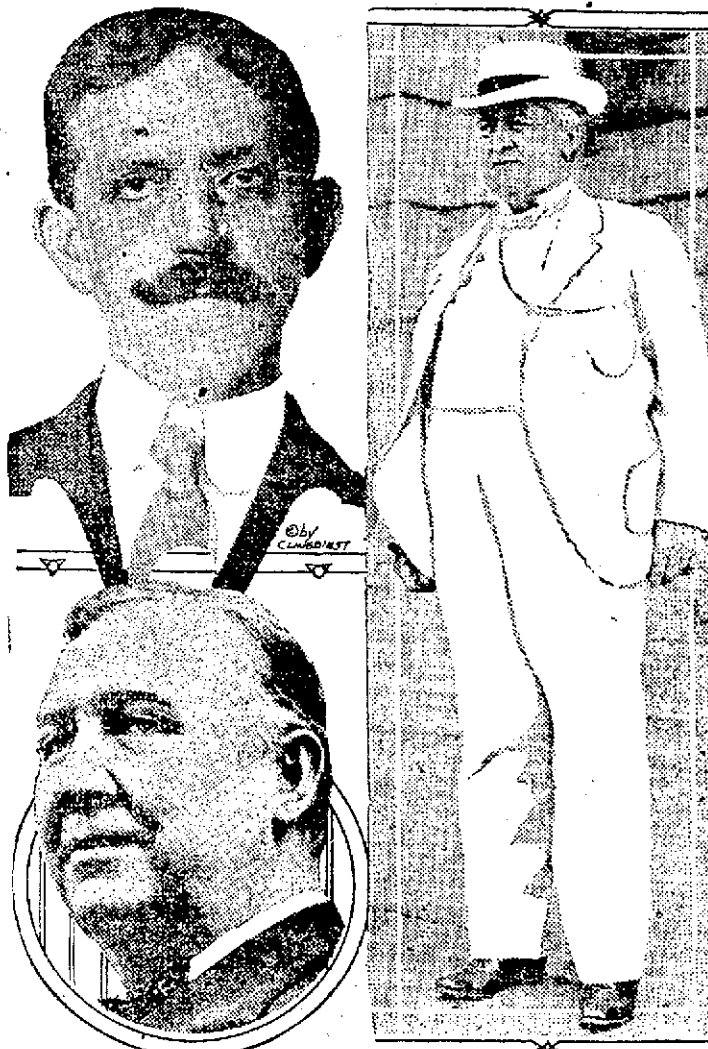

We know the origin of at least some of these wanderers of space. Years ago a comet whose return had been calculated for a certain time disappeared from the sky. It was then that there appeared a most plentiful meteoric shower. It was calculated that these meteors occupied the orbit which the expected comet had previously traversed. The meteors then were the disintegrated parts of the comet, and still periodically these particles make their appearance as luminous shooting stars.

"St. Denis." Among the ignorances of paragraphers is the use of "St. Dennis," whether as the name of a sensational dancer or otherwise. St. Denis, with one "n," is a very creditable French member in the Roman biography; the Irish Dennis, with two "n's," is a corruption of the name.—Springfield Republican.

Senators Lee Overman of North Carolina, Hoke Smith of Georgia and E. D. The opposition of the southern senators is due to the fact that thousands of children work in the cotton mills.

Wanted to Be Ready. A story is told of an old Irish gentleman who was the only undertaker in an upper Michigan city years ago. He was what might be called a fore-handed man. One day he met on the street the young son of a citizen who was reported to be at death's door. "How is yer fa-ather this mornin'?" asked the undertaker. "He's sinking fast," said the boy. "Is that so? Poor boy! By the way, how tall is yer fa-ather?"

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND

In filming "The Sting of Victory" Henry E. Walthall's next feature, beautiful mansions of southern design were to be found in numbers at Lake Forest, Chicago's millionaire suburb. Just north of this is an excellent battle-field location. Camp Logan, in normal times there are the soldiers of Fort Sheridan in the same locality, and the boys of the Great Lakes training station, together with numerous Chicago guard regiments to draw from. Just as the beautiful north shore can furnish southern homes or Italian villas with equal ease, so can the city proper give any desired architecture. William Gillette found in Chicago locations which duplicated the worst parts of London for his "Sherlock Holmes."

FINE SCENERY IN WISCONSIN. Lake Michigan can look like an ocean any time a camera is trained on it, and if other aquatic scenery is desired the most beautiful lake region in the country lies only an hour or two away in Wisconsin.

In northern Wisconsin the premeval wilderness stands preserved in state parks. Thus, when such a setting was required for "The Return of Eve," Edna Mayo's next feature, it was a simple matter to transport a company to the famous Devil's Lake, on the Wisconsin river, where the territory still is to be seen as it lay when the Chippewas roamed over it before the coming of the white man.

It is possible with Chicago as the center, to film the bustling twentieth century business activities and nature at the simplest with one camera all in the same day.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S CHANGE IN FORTUNE

As an instance of the meteoric rise of Charlie Chaplin, the eccentric comedian who receives the huge salary of $670,000 a year to make people laugh was evidenced at a recent dinner at which he was the guest of honor. At this particular dinner entertainment was furnished by professional artists. One of them was a well known stage star in whose company Chaplin played a comparatively small part less than four years ago. "Just think of it," he said, "a short time ago I was merely an actor contributing to the lady's success, whereas now I am the guest of honor and she is engaged for my amusement. However, the fact affords me less satisfaction than it does embarrassment."

She is an actress of rare ability, and plays roles in World pictures.

This sentiment is typical of the Chaplin character. Despite rumors to the contrary, there is no bigger hearted individual living than this same little fellow of the funny feet.

tales as "What Will People Say," "Clipped Wings" and "The Thirteenth Commandment," and is said to be a literary merit, not at all like the slapdash, blood-and-thunder films that have been shown in theaters of a lower class.

Manager Hogan of the Beverly theater is ready to personally guarantee the quality of "Gloria's Romance," for he has seen the early chapters of the story and was amazed to find how much above the ordinary run of films it is. All the pretty little mannerisms of Miss Burke that made her so attractive on the speaking stage are retained by the camera, and many are of the opinion that Billie will score an even greater triumph in films than she did before she decided to sign a contract for $4,000 per week as a picture player. As an extra added attraction tonight the Beverly offers Edith Storey in "The Shop Girl" in five acts.

AT THE BEVERLY THURSDAY.

"Artie, The Millionaire Kid" at the Beverly tomorrow, is not a society production and for this reason there are no startling gowns of ravishing beauty.

Variety being the spice of life, however, this picture comes as a welcome change in the majority of roles of the day. Throughout the simple rural life makes its appeal to the audience. The costumes are sweet and girlish. Exactly what one would expect to see at a young ladies' boarding school.

Dorothy Kelly, who plays the lead in "Artie," is a pupil of this seminary and from the beginning of Reel 1 to the end of Reel 5 dresses her part with no exaggeration of simplicity.

UNREASONABLE.

"May's husband thinks she's extravagant!" "Why because she insists on having Fido's monogram stamped on his dog biscuits!"

Edna Goodrich in "The Making of Maddalena."

Edna Goodrich, the celebrated beauty and dramatic actress, who is to appear in the Morosco-Paramount feature, "The Making of Maddalena," at the Apollo theater tonight, has had a long and brilliant career. The principal successes of the many Miss Goodrich attained on the dramatic stage, after a beginning in musical comedy, were—"The Genius," her own production which proved such a hit that she became Nat Goodwin's leading lady, in "When We Were Twenty-one," then co-star with Goodwin in "The Glided Fool," "In Mis-souri," "The American Citizen," "The Master Hand," "The Native Son," "What Would a Gentleman Do?" and "The Merchant of Venice."

Miss Goodrich was approached by Dan Frohman in 1914 to join the Famous Players company, but did not enter the field of pictures until this year. Her latest and best production, "The Making of Maddalena," is the story of a beautiful Italian model who marries a young American only to be drawn through a refining furnace of suffering to emerge a finished American lady.

AT THE APOLLO THURSDAY.

Alice Brady in "La Vie de Boheme." Alice Brady, star of the opera and of the stage, who made such wonderful impressions by her strong acting in "The Black," "The Boss," "As Ye Sow," and, more recently, in "Destiny," is the attraction coming at the Apollo theater on Thursday, when a big World film feature will be shown. The story is based on Henri Murger's famous French book, "La Vie de Boheme," which for several years was the biggest seller in France.

HOW TO ACQUIRE POPULARITY

A letter which came to me at the student a few days ago prompted me to write this chat. It was from a young girl who was discouraged because she was not popular at school, dances, theater parties and other places where young people congregate. This girl was unhappy, and she said she was "The Girl Who Wasn't Popular." She simply was "The Girl Who Wasn't Popular." Her letter read that although she was of a somewhat quiet and quiet disposition she had tried to be vivacious and jolly when in company, but for some reason her mirth had failed and her slight was worse than before. This "Girl Who Wasn't Popular" had yet to learn the secret of popularity.

How to be popular may be definitely told in just four words. They are "BE YOUR OWN SELF." That is to say, be normal. If your nature is quiet-vivacity upon your part is starting. If you are simply a strange, sedate ways set upon your body.

Everyone must be herself in order to have her greatest attraction. Not long ago I read a short story about a girl who although of good looks was not popular with the boys. At the dances the other girls would be the belles of the evening, but she was unable to laugh and joke with the boys was not to all appearances. Finally she gave up trying to be lively and became her true self. Suddenly she became the belle of the evening. She was saying truly funny things in her own quiet way. At first no more attention was paid to her than formerly, but gradually the boys realized how good she was. They had previously looked at her as they had previously looked at the vivacious girls. Everyone of us has some characteristics which is pleasing—our duty is to employ it tactfully.

Of course if your natural disposition is a leading one to do is to set out easy matter, and patience of unlimited degree is necessary. Nobody with a disagreeable manner is at all pleasant and acquaintances will never develop into friends in such instances.

Persons who realize their lack of popularity, however, are very seldom of this kind. They are the simple, trusting ones who deserve to be there can possibly be in store for them.

do with the health of grandchildren. If a grandfather happens to succumb to cancer or tuberculosis—and he has to succumb to something or another, and cancer or tuberculosis is as common as pneumonia or diabetes—why, that is no reason why the grandchildren should prepare to have cancer or tuberculosis. Neither of these common diseases are hereditary; they are just common enough to hit a fairly large number of individuals in every family in the land.

Grandfather's long life or short life is no insurance for or against longevity in the offspring. Grandfather's mode of living may be of some value to his grandchildren, but his tendencies, perhaps arteries run in families; diseases don't.

There are a few, a very few, diseases transmitted from parent to child, or congenitally acquired, but not through the second generation.

Grandfathers have their frailties and their weaknesses, like grandmothers, but heaven knows, if some of the old line companies have not learned that they can't be blamed for the ills of posterity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Question—Having just recently had a friend visiting us who had erythema, I hasten to ask your advice about fumigating the room she occupied. What causes it? She had high fever and much, a purplish hued rash and much swelling of the skin, sore eyes and mouth. She had been exposed to measles.

Answer—"Erythema" is not always erythema. The description rather suggests a severe attack of measles. Erythema is redness and irritation of the skin, with or without lumps or spots similar to hives, with much itching or burning, but no feverishness or serious disturbances of health. It is caused by contact with certain chemicals, drugs or plants (poison ivy may cause erythema), shell-fish, strawberries, etc. For fumigating, no matter if the friend had erythema or measles, fumigating the apartment after the patient's removal offers no security to subsequent occupants. Ordinary soap and water, sufficient ventilation of the room is sufficient sanitary precaution. Only personal articles, clothing and toilet accessories require disinfecting. Erythema is not catching.

Household Hints

CHERRY PUDDING.

One quart cherries, one cup sugar, half cup sweet milk, one tablespoon butter, pinch of salt, two teaspoons baking powder, one cup flour, half cup sugar, one egg, one pound of cherries, sweeten, leave where it will keep for a day. Take half cup sweet milk, one tablespoon butter, pinch of salt, half cup one cup flour, one egg, one pound of cherries, sweeten, leave where it will keep for a day. Take half cup sweet milk, one tablespoon butter, pinch of salt, half cup one cup flour, one egg, one pound of cherries, sweeten, leave where it will keep for a day.

VEAL LOAF.

While the weather is so warm and the oven heats up the house so, this is the way of making and cooking veal loaf. Ingredients—veal, one pound, one pork chop, all ground in food chopper; one cup milk, one cup cracker crumbs, one egg, salt and pepper to taste. Mix well, then make into patties and fry brown on both sides. Then add water and steam on top of stove for half hour. You can't tell it from the loaf baked in the bakery and you have done away with the heat.

CHERRY GEMS.

Half a cup of butter, one cup of sugar, two eggs, half a cup of sweet milk, about two cups of flour, two teaspoons of baking powder, one-half cup of stoned cherries sprinkled with sugar to make a very moist filling. The butter and sugar melt very light, then add beaten yolks of eggs and beat vigorously for five minutes. Sift flour, then sugar with baking powder and add to mixture, alternating with milk and stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Beat ten minutes, and when ready to pour into the gem rings add cherries. Butter rings well and bake in quick oven.

These little cakes need no flavoring but that of the cherries. Use either canned or fresh cherries.

MACARONI LOAF.

Cook the macaroni in the usual way and then run it through a food chopper. Mix with the macaroni one-half pound of cheese melted in one-half pint of milk. Cook one-half can of tomatoes with a few bay leaves, strain and thicken with a little flour. Season and mix all ingredients. Make into a loaf, roll in cracker crumbs and bake. Serve cold with mayonnaise.

Another very good recipe is called Spanish Dish. This is the way it is made. Mix one pound of ground pork and one pound of beef with one cup of soaked bread crumbs, salt and pepper. Add enough flour to make into balls. Bake in a quick oven. Drop balls into one cup of tomatoes that have been seasoned with salt and pepper and plenty of butter and let cook until meat is done.

QUICK CLEANING FOR WHITE SHOES.

When you wish to go out, and see at the last minute that your white canvas shoes are dirty, try this way of cleaning them:

Rub soiled shoes well with a lump of bicarbonate of soda (which can be bought at the drug store). After a few minutes brush off the loose powder and the shoes will be as white as when cleaned in the usual way.

While felt hats can also be cleaned in this way.

THE TABLE.

Cream of Vegetable Soup With Egg Balls—Use cold vegetables as follows: Two large potatoes, two carrots, one cup peas, four cups milk, one egg, one stalk celery. Press all vegetables through coarse sieve, add flour, season, and rub to smooth paste with the soup stock. Scald milk, then add the other mixture. Cook in double boiler twenty minutes. Egg Balls: Yolks or six hard-boiled eggs, salt, pepper. Rub to a paste with the yolks of two raw eggs. Form into balls and drop into soup five minutes before serving. Serve with croutons. This recipe serves six people.

Apple Meringue Pie—Slice and stew ripe, tart apples, run through colander or vegetable press into a bowl, sweeten plentifully and beat in, while hot, a teaspoonful of butter. Grease a pie plate with butter and line with puff paste. When the sauce is cold fill these shells with it and bake until very brown. Cover with a meringue of frothed egg whites slightly sweetened and flavored with vanilla or other essence; set in hot oven and bake until meringue begins to color. Sift powdered sugar over all. Eat cold. To make creamed apple pie, omit the meringue of frothed whites of the above recipe and substitute whipped cream, sprinkle powdered sugar on top.

Dressing for Spice Cake—Piece of butter, cup brown sugar, two table spoons flour. Put butter, sugar and flour in pan in oven and let all melt together. Then thin with boiling water. When cool, pour over individual portions of the cake, and add sliced bananas to each plate.

Ethel's Absence Begins to Arouse Suspicion in Fairport.

"Gaylord, there is something mysterious about Mrs. Gordon's absence," the doctor looked at the girl in his paper, keeping the tail of his eye on the paragraph he was turning. "No one knew she was going and now Ralph's mother is taking care of the house and not a word is said about why she is gone or anything."

"Let me see," began the doctor with an amused smile on his face. "Is this the young woman who is so opposed to gossip, who deplored the fact that small towns furnished nothing to occupy the mind except the affairs of the neighbors?"

"I suppose you think I am a gossip," said the girl, looking at him with a smile. "At any rate I am very much interested in the outcome of this unsuitable marriage. I have sat down on the arm of her husband's chair."

"What is there about the fact that Mrs. Gordon is gone and the young man's mother is here taking care of her son to make you worry about her prospects?" laughed her husband.

When I came home from my road trip, not many weeks ago, a flock of freckled kids stopped me and said, "now waddyaknow, each guy of all the bunch that lives up here upon the hill has been promoted, we all passed some cheer for us to spill. Yes all the kids got by and now we've earned the awful grind, no thoughts of school or numbers, has a place within our mind; and nothing else much sticks around, both thoughts and things we clout, for summer time is with us, and we're glad that school is out. Your baseball hope does not disturb about it we don't fuss, and we should care if ships are sunk—they don't belong to us, our cares are now reduced to naught, a vague and ancient dream, the sun is shining everywhere, right through the world does stream, and we are going to have some time, of that there is no doubt—for summer time is with us now and school again is out."

PHONE GIRLS' BRAVERY DURING ZEPPELIN RAIDS BRINGS ENGLISH COMMENT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, July 26.—Telephone girls' bravery during Zeppelin raids and the Irish rebellion which they helped to quell featured the annual report of the police department in conjunction with which the telephone system in this country is operated by the government.

"When the Zeppelin raids have been anticipated, sometimes when they have been going on, says the report, 'the women have come out of their homes to their work—even when bombs were dropping. They have played an important part in the scheme of air-raid warnings and have set a very good example to the whole country.'

"In Dublin, when the bullets were flying and the fires were raging, the women stuck to their work in the exchange, and it was due to them that communication was kept up and that we were able to obtain the military forces which suppressed the rebellion."

More than 25,000 women have replaced men in positions in the post-office department and telephone system, the report further shows. Out of 90,000 men of military age in these departments, 56,000 have joined the colors and 21,700 others have attested and only await the call to arms.

IN the care of a baby one of the most important things is the choice of soap not only for his bath but for washing his clothes and for general nursery use.

It is very easy for the baby's skin to become chafed and sore either from the bathing or from garments that have lost their softness in the wash, and it always is a troublesome matter to keep nursing bottles and other utensils sweet and clean.

The only safe way is to use the mildest, purest, whitest soap to be had. That is Ivory Soap. It is impossible to make soap of higher quality, no matter what the price may be. When you use it, you know that, so far as bathing and cleansing are concerned, you are doing your best to keep baby healthy and good-natured.

WOMEN DRUNKARDS IN COLORADO ARE MORE PERSISTENT THAN MEN

Denver, Colo., July 26.—Drunkards among women have been slower to decrease under the state prohibition law than among men, juvenile court authorities said here today.

Prohibition has cut down the number of cases before the various city courts, 75 per cent, disappeared. Drunkards have almost disappeared. While drinking by women shows a marked decrease, the percentage of habitual "women drunks" who have reformed falls well below that of the men.

Juvenile court officer John Phillips, who meets these cases because children generally suffer when their parents get drunk, said women are more liquor victims through environment, despondency and out of revenge.

"Once a woman is cursed with this habit," said Phillips, "her downfall is sure."

HEART AND HOME PROBLEMS

By MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Letters may be addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am in love with a boy fifteen years my senior. Do you think there is too much difference in our ages for us to go together?

(2) Our fathers are half-brothers. What relation are we?

(3) Does the law object to cousins marrying?

(4) I chum with a girl whom I like very much, but my folks do not think so. I have chummed with this girl for some time and she is a dear friend to me. Do you think that I should give her up or chum with her against my parents' wishes?

(5) Not if you are eighteen or more.

(6) You are cousins.

(7) Cousins may marry in some states. But unless you cannot possibly live without each other you should not consider marriage. In view of the fact that it has been shown many times that such has been shown many terrible results, it is certainly unwise.

(8) Do as your parents wish.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am going with a girl who is only sixteen years old. She is in her ways and actions like a young woman of nineteen. To tell the truth I love the girl. I have been going with her regularly since January. She always wants to have other fellows. She tells me that she is too young to content herself with me and me only. But I love her. Tell me what I should do. I have already asked her to marry me. She tells me she would never be married by a priest. And I would never marry otherwise. I often kiss and caress her thinking that someday she will be mine. I do

Why She Never Heard of Mrs. A.'s Children.

Of course she never did. She herself is an unmarried woman, not particularly interested in children. She never asked Mrs. A. about her family and Mrs. A. is not the kind of woman who would volunteer such information.

She can talk fascinatingly about her children to those who ask her about them and who have reason to be interested, but she is also mistress of the rarer art of being silent in the presence of those who may not be interested.

"Tacky" is a word that is not in the dictionary, but it is the only word I know that adequately expresses the combination of childish egotism and so stupid and conservative to continually about themselves.

The old gentleman could scarcely refuse me a meal, and I felt to reconstruct my breakfast. Bacon and eggs would content me, but I wanted the better part of a fitch of bacon and half a hundred eggs. And then, while my mouth was watering in anticipation, there was a click, and the door stood open. It was an invitation to leave the room.

I entered into the sunlight to find the master of the house sitting in a deep armchair in the room he called his study and regarding me with curious eyes.

"Have they gone?" I asked.

"They have gone. I convinced them that you had crossed the hill. I do not choose that the police should come between me and one whom I am delighted to honor. This is a lucky morning for you, Richard Hannay. You see that your disguise is not complete."

As he spoke his eyelids seemed to tremble and to fall a little over his keen gray eyes. In a flash the phrase of Scudder's came back to me when he had described the man he most dreaded in the world. He had said that he "could hood his eyes like a hawk."

Then I saw that I had walked straight into the enemy's headquarters. My first impulse was to throttle the old ruffian and make for the open air. He seemed to anticipate my intention, for he smiled gently and nodded to the door behind me. I turned and saw two men in uniform who had me covered with pistols.

He knew my name, but he had never seen me before. And as the reflection darted across my mind I saw a slender chance. I determined to braven it out to the end.

"I don't know what you mean," said roughly. "And who are you calling Richard Hannay? My name's Ainslie."

"So?" he said, still smiling. "But, of course, you have others. We won't quarrel about a name."

I was pulling myself together now, and I reflected that my gait, necktie and waistcoat and collar, would, at any rate, not betray me. I put on my surliest face and shrugged my shoulders.

"I suppose you're going to give me up, after all, and I call it a dirty trick. I wish I had never seen that cursed motorcar! Here's the money, and he— to you!" And I flung four sovereigns on the table.

He opened his eyes a little. "Oh, no. I shall not give you up! My friends and I will have a little private settlement with you; that is all. You know a little too much, Mr. Hannay. You are a clever actor, but not quite clever enough."

He spoke with assurance, but I could see the dawning of some doubt in his mind.

"For God's sake stop jawing!" I cried. "Everything's against me. I haven't had a bit of luck since I came on shore at Leith. What's the harm in a poor devil with an empty stomach picking up some money he finds in a bust up motorcar? That's all I done, and for that I've been chivvied for two days by those blasted bobbies over those blasted hills. I tell you, I'm fair sick of it. You can do what you like old boy! Ned Ainslie's got no fight left in him."

I could see that the doubt was gaining.

"Will you oblige me with the story of your recent doings?" he asked.

"I can't, guv'nor," I said in a real beggar's whine. "I've not had a bite to eat for two days. Give me a mouthful of food, and then you'll hear God's truth!"

I must have showed my hunger in my face, for he signaled to one of the men in the doorway. A bit of cold pie was brought and a glass of beer, and I wolfed them down like a pig, or, rather, like Ned Ainslie, for I was keeping up my character.

In the middle of my meal he spoke suddenly to me in German, but I turned on him a face as blank as a stone wall. I was steeled to carry the deception to a finish.

Then I told him my story—how I had come off an Archangel ship at Leith a week ago and was making my way overland to my brother at Winton. I had run short of cash—I hinted vaguely at a spree—and I was pretty well on my uppers when I had come on a hole in a hedge and, looking through, had seen a big motorcar lying in the lurch.

CHAPTER IX: My Actions Suspicious.

I HAD poked about to see what had happened and had found three sovereigns lying on the seat and another on the floor. There was nobody there or any sign of an owner, so I pocketed the cash. But somehow the law had got after me. When I had tried to change a sovereign in a baker's shop the woman had cried on the police, and a little later, when I was washing my face in a burn, I had been nearly gripped and had only got away by leaving my coat and waistcoat behind me.

"They can have the money back," I cried, "for a fat lot of good it's done me. Those perishes are all down on a poor man. Now, if it had been your guv'nor, that had found the quids nobody would have troubled you."

"You're a good liar, Hannay," he said.

I flew into a rage. "Stop fooling. I tell you my name's Ainslie, and I never heard of any one called Hannay in my born days! I'd sooner have the police than you with your Hannays and your monker faces and pistol tricks! No, guv'nor, I don't mean that. I'm much obliged to you for the grub. I'll thank you to let me go now. The coast's clear."

It was evident he was badly puzzled. You see, he had never seen me, and my appearance must have altered considerably from my photographs—it he had got one of them. I was pretty smart and well dressed in London, and now I was a regular tramp.

"I do not propose to let you go. If you are what you say you are you will soon have a chance of clearing yourself. If you are what I believe you are I do not think you will see the light much longer."

He rang a bell, and a third servant appeared from the veranda.

"I want the Luncheon in five minutes," he said. "There will be three to luncheon."

Then he looked steadily at me, and that was the hardest ordeal of all. There was something weird and devilish in these eyes—cold, malignant, uncharitably and most hellishly clever. They fascinated me like the bright eyes of a snake.

I had a strong impulse to throw myself on his mercy and offer to join his side, and if you consider the way I felt about the whole thing you will see that that impulse must have been purely physical—the weakness of a brain mesmerized and mastered by a stronger spirit.

But I managed to stick it out—and even to grin. "You'll know me next time, guv'nor," I said.

"Kack!" he said in German to one of the men in the doorway. "You will put this fellow in the storeroom till I return, and you will be answerable to me for his keeping."

I was marched out of the room with a pistol at each ear.

The storeroom was a damp chamber in what had been the old farmhouse. There was no carpet on the uneven floor and nothing to sit down on but a school form. It was black as pitch, for the windows were heavily shuttered.

I made out by groping that the walls were lined with boxes and barrels and sacks of some heavy stuff. The whole place smelled of mold and disease. My fingers turned the key in the door, and I could hear them shifting their feet as they stood on guard outside.

I sat down in the chilly darkness in a very miserable frame of mind. The old boy had come off in a motor to collect the two ruffians who had interviewed me yesterday. Now, they had seen me as the roadman, and they would remember me, for I was in the same rig.

What was a roadman doing twenty miles from his beat, pursued by the police? A question or two would put them in the track. Probably they had seen the real Turnbull, probably Langle too, most likely they could link me up with Sir Harry, and then the whole thing would be crystal clear.

What chance had I in this moorland house with three desperadoes and their armed servants? I began to think wistfully of the police, now plodding over the hills after my wealth. They at any rate were fellow countrymen and honest men, and their tender mercies would be kinder than these ghoul-like aliens.

But they wouldn't have listened to me. That old devil with his eyelids had not taken long to get rid of them. I thought he probably had some kind of graft with the constabulary. Most likely he had letters from cabinet ministers saying he was to be given every facility for plotting against Britain. That's the sort of English yes-we can't get out of the old country. The three would be back for lunch, so I didn't move more than a couple of hours to wait. It was simply waiting or destruction, for I could see no way out of this mess. I wished that I had Scudder's courage, for I am free to confess I didn't feel great fortitude.

The only thing that kept me going was that I was pretty furious. It made me boil with rage to think of those three spies getting the pull on me like this. I hoped that at any rate I might be able to twist one of their necks before they drowned me.

The more I thought of it the angrier I grew, and I had to get up and move about the room. I tried the shutters, but they were the kind that lock with a key, and I couldn't move them.

From the outside came the faint clucking of hens in the warm sun. Then I groped among the sacks and boxes. I couldn't open the latter, and the sacks seemed to be full of things like dog biscuits that smelled of cinnamon. But as I circumnavigated the room I found a handle in the wall which seemed worth investigating.

It was the door of a wall cupboard—what they call a "press" in Scotland—and it was locked.

I shook it, and it seemed rather dimsy. For want of something better to do I put out my strength on that door, getting some purchase on the handle by looping my braces round it. Presently the thing gave with a crash, which I thought would bring in my warders to figure.

I waited for a bit and then started to explore the cupboard shelves.

There was a multitude of queer things there. I found an odd vesta in my trouser pocket and struck a light. It went out in a second, but it showed me one thing. There was a little stock of electric torches on one shelf. I picked up one and found it was in working order.

With the torch to help me I investigated further. There were bottles and cases of queer smelling stuffs, chemicals, no doubt, for experiments, and there were coils of fine copper wire and hanks and hanks of a thin oiled silk.

Then away at the back of a shelf I found a stout brown cardboard box and inside it a wooden case. I managed to wrench it open, and within lay half a dozen little gray bricks, each about a couple of inches square. I took up one and found that it crumbled easily in my hand. Then I smelled it and put my tongue to it. After that I sat down to think. I had not been a sailing engineer for nothing, for though I had used it I had not handled it with my own fingers.

But it was a chance, the only possible chance.

It was a mighty risk, but against it was an absolute black certainty. If I used it the odds were, as I reckoned, about five to one in favor of my blowing myself into the treetops; but if I didn't I should very likely be occupying a six foot hole in the garden by the evening.

The remembrance of little Scudder decided me. It was about the bestliest moment of my life, for I'm no good at these cold blooded resolutions. Still, I managed to rake up the pluck to set my teeth and choke back the horrid doubts that flooded in on me.

I simply shut off my mind and pretended I was doing an experiment as simple as Guy Fawkes' fireworks.

I pulled a couple of the electric torches to pieces and with their small batteries and coils of wire constructed an elementary fuse. Then I took a quarter of a lentonite brick and buried it near the door below one of the sacks in a crack of the floor, linking up my fuse to it. For all I knew half those boxes might be dynamite.

If the cupboard held such deadly explosives why not the boxes?

In that case there would be a glorious skyward journey for me and the German servant and about an acre or two of the surrounding country. There was also the risk that the detonation might set off the other bricks in the cupboard, for I had forgotten most that I knew about lentonite.

But it didn't do to begin thinking about the possibilities. The odds were horrible, but I had to take them.

I encoined myself just below the sill of the window. Then I waited for a moment or two.

I commanded my soul to my Maker and touched off the fuse.

A great wave of heat seemed to surge upward from the floor and bang for a blistering instant in the air. Then the wall opposite me flashed into a golden yellow and dissolved with a rending thunder that hammered my brain into a pulp. Something dropped on me, catching the point of my left shoulder. And then I think I became unconscious.

Calcium's Value in Tuberculosis

As a tonic and remedial agent in the treatment of tuberculosis, this element is being studied by scientists and physicians everywhere.

For more than two decades users of Eckman's Alternative have tested its efficacy in such cases, for calcium chloride is one of the chief constituents of this preparation, which has produced beneficial results in thousands of instances. And in this form it is so combined as to be easily assimilated.

If you are thus afflicted, a trial may prove this to be just what is needed to assist Nature in bringing about a return to normal health.

It is safe to take, because it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any sort.

He went to the bank at once to cash it, and was told by the cashier that there were not sufficient funds to meet it.

"How much short?" asked the lad.

"Seven dollars," was the answer.

"It lacked but a minute or two of the time for the bank to close. The boy felt in his pockets, took out $7, and, pushing it through the window, said: 'Put that to the credit of Smith & Co.'

"The cashier did so, whereupon the boy presented the check and got the money. The shaky firm went under next day."

FIND INTERESTING FACTS IN AIRSHIP OBSERVATIONS AT VARIOUS HEIGHTS IN AIR.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Paris, July 26.—An airship at 4,000 yards height is able to make observations over a surface of ground 300 miles in diameter, according to information collected in the discussion of the services that aircraft has rendered during the war. An aviator at 1,000 yards height has within his vision a zone 75 miles in diameter. Accordingly, the Abbe Moreau of the Bourges Observatory has figured out that an aviator of the entrenched camp of Paris at 1,000 yards height is able to see as far as Chartres, Orleans, Beauvais, Amiens, and the German front beyond Compiègne, with the city of Leam.

This visibility, calculated mathematically, is rarely possible, however, in practice, because atmospheric conditions are seldom just right for it.

AGRICULTURAL and GARDEN DEPT

ALLEN B. WEST, Director

(By Allen B. West.)

Question.—Can you tell me what is the matter with my hollyhocks. The plants first became spotted and then turned brown and dry up, making the last very unsightly. My raspberry bushes seem to be growing nicely but all at once the leaves became wilted as if the stems were broken from the root. Can you tell me what to do for either of these troubles.

Answer.—Your hollyhocks have the black spot, for which no remedy has been found. There seems to be nothing to do but to destroy the plants and refrain from planting hollyhocks for two or three years. I have read that frequent and thorough applications of Bordeaux mixture beginning early in the spring will prevent the disease but I have my doubts as to its efficacy.

The raspberry is apparently affected with cane blight, unless perhaps there may be some injury to the base of the stem or to the root. The remedy for blight is to cut out the affected canes and destroy as soon as possible.

Question.—Do grapes need any cutting back during the summer to make them bear better?

Answer.—The proper time for trimming grapes is in the fall or early in the spring before growth starts.

Question.—What can I do to rid my premises of the wild morning glory?

Answer.—You may rid your premises of wild morning glory only by keeping "everlastingly at it." Like many other weeds this weed is easiest to combat when small before it begins to climb itself about other plants. Clean culture is the remedy for this for many other pests. Do not try to raise any crop that cannot be hoed or cultivated on land infested with this plant. It will take two years to get rid of it so do not put strawberries in infested land. The land must be cultivated often throughout the growing season. If the land is planted to corn, as soon as the corn is too late to cultivate it will be necessary to go over the field with a hoe and cut out the shoots as soon as they make their appearance. Cutting but once or twice a season only stimulates the growth for the plant is propagated by seed. One should beware of the corners and along the wire fences. It is very much at home.

Shops are good stock for riding a pasture of troublesome weeds, and infested field in a short time. It is suggested by one authority that if a field is to be plowed in the late summer and hogs turned into it, the weeds will be killed. If hogs are again turned in the spring and left until plant admits of clean culture, there should be little further trouble with this pest. Bulletin No. 150 of the Agricultural Experiment station of Brookings, South Dakota gives very helpful suggestions on many of our common weeds.

Question.—My dahlias have been growing well but the buds and do for them? What is the cause of the trouble?

Answer.—The cause is undoubtedly the hot, dry weather. Dahlias are an autumn flower and thrive best under such conditions as are prevalent in autumn, cool moist weather. It will be recalled that last summer, 1915, dahlias everywhere were beautiful with an abundance of bloom due to cool weather. The plants that are blooming now, cutting out the center later from the plants. Buds then will come dahlias like plenty of moisture. They should be planted deep and cultivated thoroughly, maintaining a dust mulch to conserve moisture. If dahlias are watered next day to conserve the moisture.

AMBROSIA TWINS NEAR THEIR BUSY SEASON JUST NOW

In tones ranging all the way up and down the scale from soprano to base, with no end of variations, sneezes will be heard on every hand soon, for the days of hay fever are not far off.

The Ambrosia twins—Ambrosia, Artemisia and Ambrosia trifida—are the cause of the great upheaval which stirs the victims of the dread Kesonia, commonly known as ragweed and giant ragweed.

When the pollen from these two worthless weeds gets into the tender nostrils the victims, when they are able to talk between sneezes, involuntarily substitute "G" for "P" and "B" for "M" in their conversation, and the more lucky people stand by and snicker at their discomfiture.

After a long and arduous campaign of sneezes and effect of hay fever the following suggestions for its cure and prevention have been offered by the American Medical Association, Association of New Orleans, La.

In order to avoid hay fever, persons susceptible to it should see that the neighborhood of their residence is free of tall grass, weeds, and especially of the rag weeds. The three squares in each direction should be inspected, and if weeds are found the owners should be urged to have them cut at once. Where this is refused, these cases in the interest of general sanitation, should be reported to the health authorities for violating the grass weed ordinance. Where no such laws exist, it is about the undertaking to have such a law passed as soon as practicable.

As hay fever is due to pollen of neglected weeds, a temporary visit to a more central part of the home town at a sufficient distance (one-half mile) from such weeds, will usually give entire relief.

Constitutional conditions have been found to have little influence, except as a predisposing cause. The real cause of hay fever is the inhalation of pollen, and the avoidance of this means no hay fever.

A convention of hay fever sufferers who are members of the National Hay Fever association will be held August 31 at Bethlehem, N. H., in the White Mountains. Two hundred thousand sneezers are said to be enrolled in the association and several thousand are expected to gather there for the meetings.

"BUY A YARD OF LUMBER" A DEPARTMENT STORE SIGN

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)

Chicago, July 26.—Along with fancy ribbons, women's silk hose and sport shirts, lumber can now be bought over the counter at department stores, it was discovered here today.

It can be bought by the yard, odd lengths can be secured in the bargain basement and various kinds of fancy grains are carried for the more particular lumber customers.

The reporter went out to investigate. Entering a loop department store he queried the floor walker who conducted him to the "lumber yard."

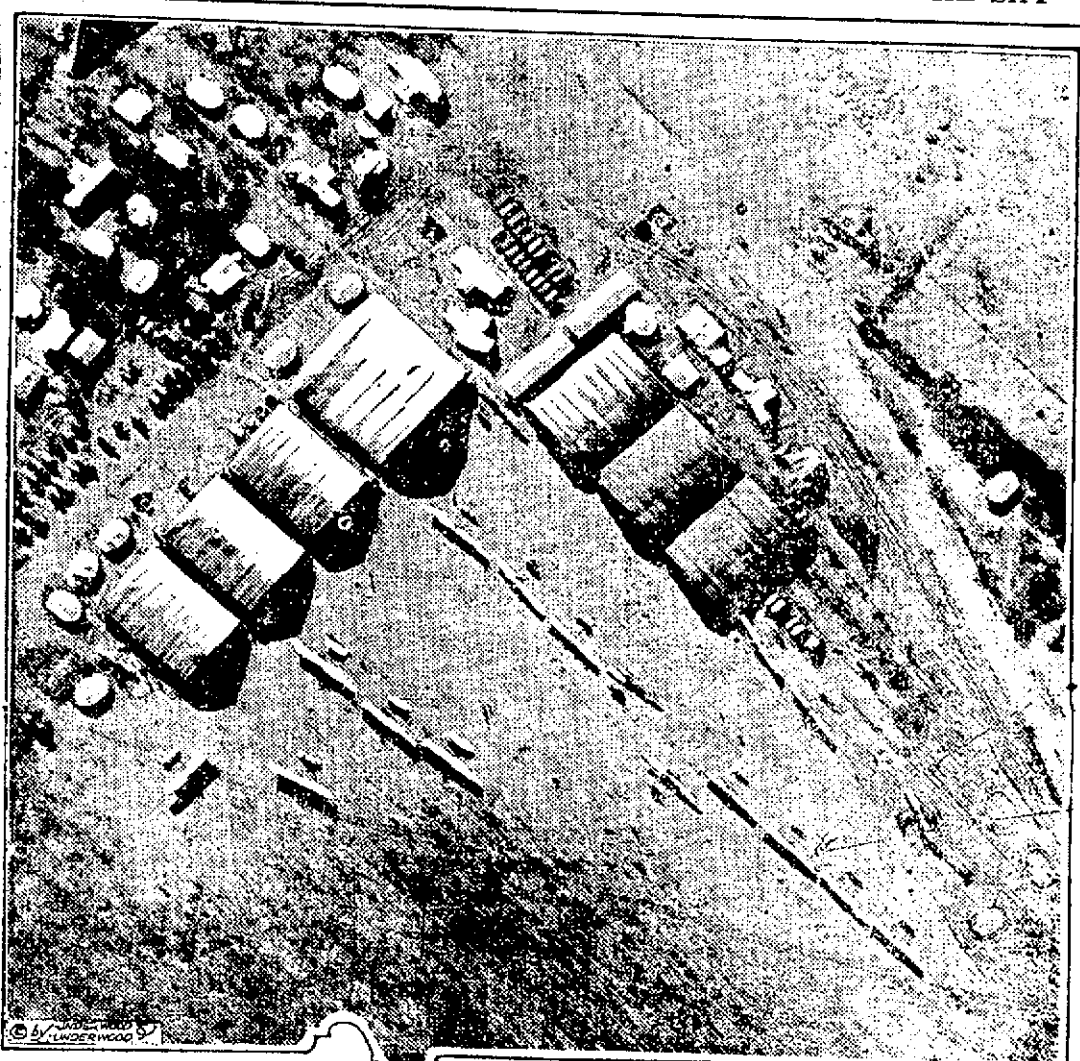

"Yes, this is the lumber counter," said the sales girl and the reporter learned that he could secure wood with which to make a kitchen cabinet or he might buy a piece with a knot in it out of which he could model a wooden leg.

"Lumber at three cents a stick," and "Buy a Yard of Lumber" are examples of the bargain cards placed at the lumber counters.

Department store lumber yards are a reality in thirty-six large cities in the country, the store people here declared today. One western firm makes a specialty of jobbing this lumber, supplying odd lengths and short pieces of lumber that would otherwise go to waste.

FRENCH AVIATION CAMP AT VERDUN AS SEEN FROM THE SKY

This remarkable picture was taken from a French aeroplane about 500 metres in the air directly over a French aviation camp near Verdun. The photograph plainly shows the aero hangars and in front of them the insect-like war planes. Grouped about the hangars are motor trucks and cars, and to the left are shown a number of tents, the living abodes of the aviators, pilots and others situated about the camp. The broad white streak running diagonally across the photo is a road.

"Beer Great Toner" For Athletes

READ what C. T. Flanagan, Famous Athlete and Founder of the Irish-Canadian Club, says: "Beer is the best upbuilder and sustainer next to beef steak and is essentially an athletic food. Nearly all trainers of note prescribe beer, in fact every American athletic record is held by men who follow this principle."

Another celebrated United States Athlete, Abel R. Kiviat, says: "I have used beer moderately for the past four years during my career as a runner. I have found it to be of great value as an aid to digestion and honestly believe that it is beneficial and without question, a body builder. I drink beer moderately while in training, especially with my principal meal of the day."

These Men Know

Their experience is the experience of countless others. Athletic work is strenuous, requires endurance and necessitates rapid body rebuilding.

SOX PUT A CRIMP INTO CHESTY YANKS

Bill Donovan's Pennant Leaders Suffer 13 to 8 Defeat—Cubs Win With Evers.

Amassing thirteen tallies on a total of nine safeties against thirteen hits and eight runs, the White Sox plastered baseball all over the league leading Yanks yesterday and won easily. Every time the New Yorkers opened a spurt the Sox were quick to come back and generally doubled up on the amount of performance just passed.

It was a long, listless game, which ended in the sixth insofar as winning was concerned. The Sox amassed five runs here and clinched the contest.

It was the first game on the home heather since the eastern trip of twenty-one games. A fair crowd was out to greet the travelers, but they were soon disappointed with the nature of game displayed.

Eddie Cicotte and Red Russell did the pitching against Ray Caldwell and a little bit of love, who must have thought the Sox were burning with anything but this emotion for him.

Cubs in 3-2 Victory. Boston, July 26.—Johnny Evers still is a winning ball player for the Cubs. John assisted the Cubs to victory today, 3 to 2, by kicking himself out of the contest, taking on Rollie Zeider, who objected to unkind reference to the length of his nose.

The combat was proceeding high into the stage of darkness before Mr. Evers' absence was appreciated. In the eleventh chapter Fitzpatrick, who subbed for Evers, checked the baseball into the Cubs' coop and Reine Zimmerman romped home with the winning count.

The most startling feature of the fray was the brief engagement in which Evers and Zeider featured. In the sixth the Keystone King was called out on strikes. He didn't believe the third one, and so said to Umpire Nat Eason. Finally Evers commenced to take his departure, leaving the grounds via third base.

En route he paused to converse with Rollie Zeider over what he believed was a great injustice. He measured off the distance with the end of his bat. Some of his words must have been offensive, for Rollie shoved him away. Both departed from the game.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

Aside from this outburst of temperment it was a nice ball game, featured by excellent pitching, some classy fielding and a striking absence of base hits. Claude Hendrix pitched for the Cubs and did well. Barnes also was stingy with hits and had it not been for the wild throw of Fitzpatrick's the game might have run into darkness and a tie.

Mike Gonzales, the Cuban catcher with the Cards, got into a little rumpus with Brad Kocker, Giant catcher, at St. Louis not so long ago. Mike threw his mask at Kocker and after they tried to spar a bit, but were interrupted. Gonzales has been catching quite a bit for the cards lately in the absence of Snyder and while his fielding and mechanical ability seem faultless, he isn't always there on time with the headwork. The Cards got him from the Reds.

FOURTH WARD TEAM LEADS THE LEAGUE

Webster Playground Team's Victory Over Jefferson Places Them at Head of Percentage Column.

By winning from the Jefferson school nine yesterday the Webster team won first place for themselves in the playground indoor baseball league. At the same time that the Webster team was winning the Washington pushed themselves into a tie with the Jefferson for second place. The Fourth Ward boys won by the score of 14 to 9 after a close game with the Jefferson. Nowlan, pitcher for the Jefferson, was out of the game thus weakening the losers materially. Wilson, on the mound for the Washington had an easy time stopping the Adams school batters with the result that they ran up a score of 24 to 10.

On Thursday the Adams and the Webster teams will meet at the Adams plot while on Friday the Jefferson and the Washington will fight for second position.

AUSTRIAN DERBY PRIZE $25,000 GOES TO CHARITY

Vienna, July 26.—The rich Austrian Derby prize of 122,000 kronen (nearly $25,000) which was captured on June 12 by Sanskrit, Baron Alfons Roth-schild's horse, is to be spent for charitable purposes, according to an announcement of the Baroness Rothschild.

In the absence of her husband in the field, the baroness represented him at Freudenau on Derby day, and soon after their horse had won she made it known that the richest prize of the entire racing year in Austria should be divided equally between the Red Cross, the "Conrad von Hotendorf Fund," the "Fund for the Blind" established by the Ministry of the Interior and the "Day Home for War Orphans and Children."

When Jim Dunn, Cleveland Indian owner, signed Fred Beebe he told the veteran that he was being taken merely on trial and that if he didn't make good he would be released. "You won't have to release me," said Beebe. "If I can't pitch the sort of ball that I know is my best, and that I ought to win games then I'll quit of my own accord." The work Beebe has done to date makes it seem that he won't be quitting for some while.

MORRIS MILLER

Jack Fournier of the White Sox gets tired of being called an ex-lumberman. He admits that he comes from the Canadian northwest, but never had part in the lumbering that is done there, having always been employed around livery stables in various capacities. He declares that the lively stable profession lost one of its most gifted buggy washers when he joined the local baseball organization and decided to follow the game for a living.

The Yanks begin to look like the prize hard luck team of recent eras and in spite of all the crippling they are still fighting along at the top in the pluckiest fashion. Enough injuries have befallen them lately to put the average team on its rocks for quite a spell. Most every star on the team has been trundled about in an invalid chair at some time or other this season and quite a few are still. Ray Caldwell had an awful fall this spring and sprained his shoulder. Then Fritz Maisel broke his collarbone, Gil-hooler broke his leg and Frank Baker broke two ribs. That's enough disaster to keep the average team out of the race for the biggest part of the season. But the Yanks keep cheery and hopeful. And if they're able to keep at the top just now they should do a much when some of the cripples get back into the line-up.

Allen Russell, pitching for the New York Yanks, has been showing more class than he ever taught in possession and if he keeps it up he will be used regularly and may develop into a winner. Russell was practically broke under the Yanks last fall after their scouts had looked at him and had been unwilling to have over him. But Jack Dunn, managing Richmond after the Baltimore franchise had been transferred there, simply insisted that Russell be given a chance, and so he was. Right now it seems a fortunate thing for the Yanks that Dunn felt that way about it.

Slim Sallee, being a southpaw, is more superstitious than the average ball player. His favorite delirium is the one about the catcher that warns him up. He will never warm up before the game with any other catcher than the one catching the whole game. Also if it happens through chance that the regular catcher is not ready and another steps up to catch a few until the inning begins, Slim will toss the ball with the first or third baseman rather than the sub catcher. He admits his jinx and doesn't care to trifle with it.

Though there will be no international matches in tennis this season, the presence of a Japanese champion in this country gives the big matches in the east something of the international interest. Kumagae, the Jap star, who defeated Clarence Griffin again in rather easy style a short while ago, will make a tough opponent for Norris Williams, McLoughlin or William Johnston in the tournament at Seabright, Longwood and the big national tourney. Though Griffin is perhaps not the equal of the three mentioned in singles play he is one of the first stars of the game and Kumagae's victory promises some hot fights to come between the little Jap

DUTCH PAPERS COMMENT ON APPOINTMENT OF TURK AS MINISTER AT HAGUE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] The Hague, Netherlands, July 26.—The appointment as Turkish Minister at the Hague of Muktar Bey, who according to advices from Constantinople is one of the best diplomats of the Young Turks, is interpreted by the Dutch press as showing that the Porte imputes a special importance to this post in connection with the role which Holland and its Queen are expected to play in eventual mediation for the opening of peace negotiations, and with the probability that such negotiations will take place here. Muktar Bey was Under Secretary of State at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Constantinople at the time of his appointment, and before the war Minister at Athens. He is just over forty and is described as an excellent public speaker and a cosmopolitan by nature.

GERMAN COLONIAL TROOPS FIGHT BRITISH WITH MUD BEES

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] London, July 26.—How the German colonial forces in East Africa enlisted bees to fight the British is told in an account which arrived here today from Natal.

The natives of East Africa make beehives of hollow logs which they place in the trees. The Germans gathered large quantities of these hives and attached them upright to a wire in the long grass. To the wire was also attached a device which raised a white flag when anything came in contact with it.

A party of Britishers had the misfortune to stumble over the wire and dozens of beehives came crashing to the ground simultaneously with the appearance of the white flag. Angry, fighting-mad bees and German machine gun bullets were soon working together against the British. The account from Natal is without further detail except to say that the British had a hot time.

GOULD CONTROL OF D & R. G. MAY BE CLINCHED TODAY

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE] New York, July 26.—Control of the Denver & Rio Grand railroad and its outlet lines to the Pacific southwest by the Jay Gould estate, may be clinched at a conference in George J. Gould's office here today.

This meeting is the result of a young war between railroad magnates over the control and development of the Missouri Pacific system and the D. & R. G. system, the ownership of which and their subsidiaries being badly mixed up between the two groups.

The Jay Gould estate owns a controlling interest in the Texas & Pacific and International & Great North-western. These two roads really are tap lines into middle-south territory for the Missouri Pacific railroad, but the group of bankers controlling the Missouri Pacific cannot use them as such because the Gould estate controls them.

MADISON ASKS FOR A FARM LOAN BANK

Makes Formal Application to McAdoo for Location of New Federal Bank Headquarters.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Madison, Wis., July 25.—The city of Madison has made formal application to Treasury William D. McAdoo for location of the new federal bank headquarters. The federal farm loan act calls for the division of the United States into districts with one bank in each district. The capital stock of each district bank is to be $750,000. From information received here it is quite probable that one district will comprise the state of Wisconsin, eastern Minnesota and northern Illinois. The Madison board of commerce in a letter to Secretary McAdoo claims that Madison would be centrally located to furnish all of these states. It is said here that in any event the city of La Crosse will also make application. The control of these banks will be vested in a board of five members to be appointed by the president and including the secretary of the treasury. This board has much power. It will locate the district banks and will have authority over rates of interest as well as over the general policies of the banks. The bill creating these banks has just been signed by President Wilson. Professor B. H. Hubbard of the university has been the chief spokesman for the tendency to develop the country and may be of great assistance to the people of Wisconsin.

WELSH COAL MAGNATE EFFECTS BIG COMBINE.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
London, July 25.—The greatest coal combine known to the United Kingdom has just been effected by Lord Rhonda, better known to Americans as D. A. Thomas, the Welsh coal magnate. He has brought into the Cambrian Combine of which he is managing director, between 2,500 and 4,000 acres of the richest portion of the South Wales coal fields belonging to D. Davis & Sons, Ltd. The deal involves the transfer of the properties of the Welsh Navigation Steam Coal Company, Ltd., acquired three years ago by Davis & Sons for $1,574,250. The combine placed Lord Rhonda at the head of an organization with a capital of $17,785,170. Public interest has been so much concentrated in the war that outside business and industry has practically no interest has been taken in the gigantic effect of the deal. It is that the Consolidated Cambrian Combine controls now all of the fields producing the renowned steam coal which has been said to constitute the life of the British Navy. It is said that there is no coal in the world with a higher reputation for steaming purposes, and that more record runs by ocean craft between New York and Liverpool have been made with this coal than with any other. Details of the deal are not available, but it is understood that the market value of the shares of D. Davis & Sons, Ltd., have appreciated in value recently from $7.675 to $10.00, and that the great combine will have an annual output of 6,000,000 tons.

MAN WHO DIED ON OPERATING TABLE IS ALIVE TODAY

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
London, July 26.—Lance Corporal Mayes, Queen's Westminster Regiment lives today to be able to say that he died.
A German shell clipped off part of Mayes' right arm at Ypres last Christmas. Eventually he landed in a London hospital with a slump of an arm and a leg in a cast. He was told that he would never see his family again. Under an anesthetic the soldier's heart collapsed and ceased to beat. The patient was dead. The surgeon then charged and quickly performed. He made an incision large enough to admit his hand in Mayes' side. He lifted the diaphragm, reached the heart and gently massaged the organ with his fingers. The heart responded and resumed pulsations. Mayes is now on the road to complete recovery. In another month he will be wearing an artificial arm and leg and in a few months more he will be taught by the government.

The Hague, Netherlands, July 26.—The official Reichsanzeiger of Berlin acknowledges the impossibility of enforcing the German's custom of rigidly regarding dress adopted the tenth of June. The following relaxation of the rules has been announced: "Permissible Need for Renewals of Clothing."
First—At the inauguration of a household.
Second—During pregnancy and child birth.
Third—Illness, or deaths, in the family.
Fourth—Special church festivals, or events of a religious nature.
Fifth—Other special cases affecting classes who presumably do not possess spare clothes.

PROWESS OF CANADIANS WINS LONDON'S ADMIRATION.

London, July 26.—Residents of the metropolis are coming to think more and more of the Canadians. Their popularity is immense, all classes being ready to cheer them on any occasion, their pleasant position being due to their prowess in the trenches and in the raiding lines at the front. The most recent opportunity of the Londoners to pay homage to those of the Dominion has just occurred in the parade of three hundred selected bandmen of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. The musicians, who were the soloists picked from 15,000 bandmen with the force, gave a promenade concert at the Royal Opera House, in aid of the fund for the British War. Then, divided into three complete bands, they paraded the Strand, Piccadilly, Pall Mall and into Trafalgar Square, receiving enthusiastic cheers from all sides.

HIDDEN PUZZLE

WAITING.
Find a man.

THE LANDLORD

By LOUISE OLIVER.

When moving time came it was unfortunate for Cornelia that both her parents had to be away.

So with black Judas and his wife, Violet, she had managed to get china, rugs and furniture into shape for transportation across the city to the cozy new bungalow in the hillside above the river.

For days Cornelia had scoured agencies and scanned lists, waded through mud and lost her way, ruined clothes and caught colds, and altogether it had been a most disheartening process. But her courage remained unshaken and her will at last found a way, for one day she came across what she wanted—exactly! A bungalow on a hillside with a superb view of the river. This was no mere house, it was explained to her at the office, the owner having built it for himself, but he was an Englishman and had gone to war and was now somewhere in the trenches in France.

Moving day came. Cornelia rose at six and after a hurried breakfast took the car to her future home.

The conductor began to call stations instead of streets. At one of these Cornelia got off and made her way along the roads toward the haven on the hill that was to be her home.

She mounted the steps of the terrace and took out her key. Then the hum of a powerful motor caught her ear. Down the road were coming two immense trucks loaded with furniture! Then around the corner of the house came a man who called, "Hello, Dorgan! Come on and help me get that door open. I forgot to get the keys!" Then, seeing Cornelia with her key in the lock, he hurried up the steps.

"I don't quite understand," said Cornelia. "I rented this house a week ago. There seems to be some mistake."

The man regarded her quietly for a minute. She was very pretty, was Cornelia—very—and one would have said that his mind was not entirely upon the fact that someone else was trying to move into the same domicile with himself.

"What shall we do to McAlpin & Co.?" asked the man quietly. "They assured me the property was without a tenant and that I could certainly move in. However, to annihilate them won't help matters much, will it? And for us to demolish one another wouldn't do either, would it, because—" he paused an instant, "well, because it wouldn't. You said 'we' were moving in. That implies a family!"

"Yes, my father and mother and brother. I am Cornelia Anderson."

"So, you see, to do away with you still leaves a father and mother and brother. Now with me it's different. I'm alone! And if you will only look at me with a little more tolerance I will beat a hasty retreat and take my cook stove and rocking chairs along with me!"

Cornelia, completely mollified, held out the key. "Under the circumstances we have no more right to the house than you have. I can't possibly move our furniture into it knowing that I am leaving an American and a gentleman out in the cold without any home."

They laughed together. "But," he protested, "you wouldn't exactly be leaving me without a home. I really was only going to use the place as a sort of storage house for my things for the time being—not a home, you see, at least for some time to come. Besides, I'm not altogether an American gentleman. I'm an English soldier just now."

"Then you—then this is your house. You are my landlord!"

"Don't call me that, please—it sounds so unfriendly."

"But the house is yours! They told me all about you at the office!"

"True enough! But that hasn't anything to do with the case. I'm home on sick leave. I'm going back soon. All I'm doing now is to make havoc of other people's plans. So I'm better out of the way."

Cornelia thought a minute. Then, "There's an immense attic! Would that be of any use?"

He caught her meaning. "That's a bully idea! Don't you need it—the garret, I mean?"

"No, indeed! We'd be glad to have you use it!"

"Thanks, awfully. Then it's settled. I'll tell Dorgan he can put the things in. I must be off on the one o'clock train, and I've some business to attend to before I leave."

Cornelia was silent. Try as she would, she could think of nothing to say in parting. But the soldier went on: "Will you come to the end of the veranda with me, where there is a better view of the river?"

She went with him.

"A soldier in active service cannot afford to lose a minute. Don't think me abrupt, if you can help it, but try to understand that after the next few minutes I may never see you again. And I'd like to go away with the feeling that you'd hope for me to come back. Is it a hopeless wish?"

Cornelia did not stop to understand the panic in her heart as she answered him slowly:

"No—I do hope very much that you will come home soon—safe and sound. I shall be very, very glad to see you."

He caught her hand suddenly in his. "Dear girl," he said earnestly, "I'll come!"

Otranto, a Fishing Village of Italy

"Across the Straits of Otranto, where an Austrian cruiser is reported to have sunk several armored British patrol boats recently, have sailed some of the greatest of history-making expeditions of ancient and medieval time," says today's war geography bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society in Washington. "This fifty-mile wide strait of water, which joins the Adriatic and Ionian Seas, separates the southeastern extremity or heel of the Italian peninsula from that part of Albania which was known in ancient times as Epirus."

"It is sixty miles from Otranto, the beautifully situated Italian fishing village which gives its name to the straits, to Avlona, the nearest port in Albania. Four hundred miles to the northwest are Venice and Trieste, at the head of the Adriatic, and five hundred and fifty miles to the southwest, beyond the Ionian Sea, is the British possession, Malta."

"At the beginning of the war Otranto was a largely unpopulated town of 2,000 inhabitants, but of some importance as the Italian terminus of the cable and telegraph line to Constantinople, via Avlona. It also had cable connection with the island of Corfu. The town's historical associations date back to Graeco-Roman times, for it occupies the site of the ancient Hydruntum, and was one of Rome's ports of embarkation for Apollonia, the famous Greek center of culture and art, which the future emperor, Augustus, was completing his education at the time that he was summoned to the capital following the assassination of Julius Caesar."

"Otranto was one of the Calabrian towns captured in 1083 by Robert Guiscard (the sly), that resourceful Norman adventurer, who at the height of his career gave promise of dominating in southern Italy and in Greece the triumphs won by his fellow countryman, William the Conqueror, who during the same decade was subduing England. Four hundred years later the seaport was again raided and this time was completely destroyed by the Turks. From this point it never recovered. Among the points of interest in the village today are the castle, built by King Roger of Aragon, and the cathedral, which dates back to the eleventh century and in which are to be found some of the columns that once graced the temple of Minerva at San Paolo."

"South of Otranto is an extremely fertile and populous section of the Apulian peninsula which terminates thirty miles below the town in the promontory of Maria di Leuca, with its white limestone cliffs marking the southeastern extremity of Italy. To the northwest of Otranto, fifty three miles by rail, is Brindisi, the famous Brundisium of the ancients which has taken on new life in recent years, owing to its advantageous position as a gateway for the freight coming from the Alps through the Saint Gothard and Great St. Bernard tunnels, and destined for the Far East through Suez."

"Avlona, also called Valona, on the eastern shores of the Otranto Straits, is the best harbor on the Albanian coast, being protected by the island of Saseno and the lofty Cape Glesne. Like Otranto, it suffered pillage at the hands of the Turks in the fifteenth century, but recovered from this misfortune more readily than its Italian sister city, for it is now a town of 6,000 people, and enjoys a considerable trade in hides, olives, cotton, cattle and sheep, while it is famous for its almonds, which are the acorn cups gathered in adjacent oak groves. This 'flour', which derives its name from the town, is used extensively in the tanning industry."

"It was across the Straits of Otranto that the valiant Pyrrhus, cousin of Alexander the Great and professor of Alexander of Pyrrhus, son of Achilles, sailed in the third century before the Christian era. Exposing the cause of the people of Tarentum, he fought those desperate battles against Rome which gave rise to the familiar phrase, a pyrrhic victory", used today to describe a conflict the successful issue of which is so costly to the victor as ultimately to prove disastrous. It was after Heraclea, where for the first time in history Greeks and Romans were the opposing forces, that Pyrrhus, surveying the field where thousands of his bravest troops lay dead, exclaimed, "Another such victory and I must return to Epirus again." It was on the same occasion that observing the thousands of all the Romans killed in action in front, he mused, "Had I such soldiers, should soon be master of the world."
